MR. VAN BUREN AND THE PAPAL QUESTION.

We welcome, in a large degree, the recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.

The recent action of the American Catholic Church in withdrawing from the pontifical envoy Mr. Van Buren, in view of the appearance of the latter as the representative of the Holy See at the National Convention. This course is a recognition of the principle that a public servant should not be employed to create a sense of party in the public mind, and that the duties of a public servant should not be confided to a man who is to be regarded as an agent of any political faction.