CITY OF ALTON.

THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 31, 1854.

"Bread or Whisky." Under this head, the New York Tribune has an article urging the importance, in the present failure of the corn crop, of economizing that grain as much as possible, in order to guard against the distress for food which seems likely to be general through the country. It estimates that not are annually consumed in the manufacture of liquors, and that this amount taken from this year's yield cannot but cause a great scarcity of bread, if not to some extent, a famine in the land. There is no doubt that the present and future high prices of grain will prevent its use in distilleries to a very considerable extent, but how far, can only be conjectured. Farmers should economize their supplies as much as possible, for breadstuffs and human food. There is nowhere a surplus of corn, and in some of the most productive regions, there will be an alarming scarcity. The price of bread will be very naturally increased; and the home demand will require all that will be raised.

Tornado at Louisville.

On last Sunday a very violent storm visited Louisville, Ky., which did great damage to houses and destroyed a number of lives. Advices from Louisville state that upwards of one hundred houses were unroofed, and many were entirely demolished. Among these was the Fourth Presbyterian Church. Both the side walls fell in with a terrible crash, while the congregation were at worship. Eighteen were instantly killed and many more were dreadfully injured. The scene is described as most heart-rending, frantic parents crying for their children, in the midst of the greatest confusion. On Monday, the stores of the city were all closed, and the bells tolled during the day.

Double Murder at St. Louis.

On Tuesday evening, a murderous assault was committed on the St. Louis levee, which resulttook an apple from the fruit stand of a man nam- allowed. ed Francisco Frantini; the boy was immediately pursued and running down the levee, took refuge on board the steamer Forest Rose. Here, Frantini was met by the mate whose name is William Middleton, who fired a pistol at him, the contents ef which entered Frantini's right side, passing minutes afterwards.

Holton, just after attempted to arrest Middleton, when the latter drew a knife and stabbed him in the left side, inflicting a gash so dreadful that his intestines protruded. It is thought that Mr. Holton cannot possibly recover. So soon as Middleton accomplished this double murder, he took a yawl and rowed for the opposite shore. Campaign Opened-Harris on the Stunip. CARROLLTON, Aug. 29, 1864.

Major HARRIS -- the Douglas anti-Missouri Com promise candidate for Congress—opened the can vass in this (Sixth) District, on yesterday, In a speech of about two hours, he defined his position as a decided opponent of the Missouri Compromise, and labored hard to defend its repeal by the Kansas-Nebraska bill. His speech ought to gratify the most ardent friend to the universal extension of slavery. He spoke fluently, and less than a hundred millions of bushels of grain if desirous that there should be no mistaking that a vote for him would be a full indorsement of the repeal of the Missouri Compromise. He went further-denouncing the original planners, introducers and supporters of the Missouri Compromise as the old "broken down Federalist party. led by Rufus King" Is it so? I have not so read its history.

Mr. Yates, his opponent, could not be present; he, it is hoped, will be able to meet the gallant Major at Carlinville next Monday. While Maj. HARRIS was speaking, Mr. LINCOLN of Springfield, arrived in the stage, and by request he addressed the crowd assembled in defense of the Missouri Compromise, and in opposition to so much of the Nebraska bill as repeals it-speaking more than two hours. I need only to say, in reference to his speech, that Lincoln was himself. He did not attempt to answer HARRIS-as he had not heard any of his speech. Both were listened to with marked attention.

At the close of Mr. Lincoln's remarks, Major HARRIS gave notice that he would answer at night. As Mr. LINCOLN was to leave town immediately, he could not be present. Accordingly at dark, the Major again held forth to a goodly crowd assembled on the grass around the wagon in the Court House yard, (where the speaking was during the day.) As I did not hear the whole speech, I cannot say anything as to its whole speech, I cannot say anything as to its general bearing—for the little time that I was there it seemed to me that there was a very carethere it seemed to me that there was a very careful fishing for anti-slavery votes. I may have the courage to dare what they had not the abilon the 28th, bringing advices from the city of ity to perform." I believe Major HARRIS has Mexico to the 20th, and from Vera Cruz to the the courage, but not the ability, to beat "DICK YATES"-for the people won't let him.

The English Opinion of the Greytown Af-

The London Times, after re-capitulating the auses which led to the bombardment of Greytown, concludes as follows: Greytown is not a British possession: if it had been, measures would have been taken to repel so wanton and barbarous an attack; but we have at and they heave a sigh as long as the moral law, and are ready to faint away. You expect them to get up before day—to work in the kitchen—to breathe the fresh air of morning! Preposterous and absurd! They have never seen the sun rise, and would hardly know but the sun continues to shipe forever if it were not for the almost this time no further interest in the place than that which results from the commercial undertakings in which Bsitish subjects may be engaged there. It is impossible, however, to lose sight of the fact, which stands recorded in a solemn treawith much apparent frankness and sincerity, as ty, that Great Britain waived and relinquished the model has no mistaking that her right to the protectorate of the Mosquito coast and of Greytown, its principal trading station, on the express stipulation with the United States, that they would in conjunction with ourselves, "guarantee the neutrality and security of the passage." The object of that treaty was to "the construction of the communication between the two oceans for the benefit of mankind, on equal terms to all, and for the protection of the same." It is certainly a most extraordinary violation of the spirit of that treaty, that an American ship-of-war should have presumed, in defense of at best a very doubtful cause, to attack and destroy the principal commercial station, situated on this very line of communication which the American Government is expressly bound to maintain and protect. The act of Cap-tain Hollins speaks for itself. It is, indeed without a parallel in any history with which we are acquainted, for the place was wholly incapable of firing a shot in its defense, not a man was killed or wounded in the attack, and the enterprise was one of mere destruction.

The American papers, from which we have ex-tracted these details, record them with the strong est expressions of shame and regret; and we can not doubt that the public opinion of the enlight-ened classes in the United States will condemn these proceedings as strongly as the judgment of every other part of the world. There is in this case no war and no provocation to account for or to palliate such a measure. Far from being at war with the States of Central America, the Government of the United States has always affected to regard them with peculiar interest; and the first proof given of this interest is an act of violence which would have disgraced a buccaward this country, and the whole world, for the ful fishing for anti-slavery votes. I may have been mistaken.—I have heard of men "who had the courage to dare what they had not the abil
