The following is the correspondence between the two rival candidates for the United States Senate.

MR. LINCOLN TO MR. DOUGLAS.

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 25, 1858.

Hon. S. A. Douglas—Dear Sir,—Will it be agreeable to you and myself to divide the time and address the same audiences during the present canvass? My duty to my constituents and candidates, I now accept your answer, and, if agreeable to you, to enter into the terms of such arrangement.

Your obedient servant,

A. LINCOLN.

MR. DOUGLAS TO MR. LINCOLN.

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 24, 1858.

Hon. A. Lincoln,—Dear Sir:—Your note of yesterday is received here if it will be agreeable to me to make an arrangement to divide the time and address the same audiences during the present canvass. My duty to my constituents and candidates, I now accept your answer, and, if agreeable to you, to enter into the terms of such arrangement.

Your obedient servant,

S. A. DOUGLAS.

MR. LINCOLN TO MR. DOUGLAS.

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 24, 1858.

Hon. A. Lincoln,—Dear Sir:—Your note of yesterday is received here if it will be agreeable to me to make an arrangement to divide the time and address the same audiences during the present canvass. My duty to my constituents and candidates, I now accept your answer, and, if agreeable to you, to enter into the terms of such arrangement.

Your obedient servant,

S. A. DOUGLAS.

MR. DOUGLAS TO MR. LINCOLN.

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 24, 1858.

Hon. A. Lincoln,—Dear Sir:—Your note of yesterday is received here if it will be agreeable to me to make an arrangement to divide the time and address the same audiences during the present canvass. My duty to my constituents and candidates, I now accept your answer, and, if agreeable to you, to enter into the terms of such arrangement.

Your obedient servant,

S. A. DOUGLAS.